Director’s Introduction

Two thousand and ten was a good year for PRIO, and thus a good year to be PRIO director. PRIO’s new logo and visual profile were introduced, intended to signal our continued commitment to being at the global forefront in research on peace and conflict. PRIO’s two academic journals, Journal of Peace Research and Security Dialogue, figured on the ISI top ten list for international relations (measured in terms of the two-year impact factor).

We laid the foundations for a new Research School in Peace and Conflict, in partnership with the Norwegian University of Science and Technology (NTNU) and the University of Oslo.

The first ever PRIO Annual Peace Address – on ‘Justice, Truth, Peace’ – was given by Jon Elster, Ambassador Kai Eide, who stepped down as the UN Secretary-General’s Special Representative for Afghanistan, spent parts of the year as a ‘practitioner in residence’. And an independent review of the PRIO Cyprus Centre demonstrated the unique position that our research plays in informing political processes on the island. These are all remarkable achievements, but for 2010 there are three highlights to which I would particularly like to draw your attention:

Climate Change and Conflict Researchers from PRIO’s Centre for the Study of Civil War (CSCW) have long been influential in the scholarly debate on the potential impact of climate change on peace and conflict. At the 25th Anniversary Conference for the Royal Norwegian Society of Sciences and Letters (DKNVS), PRIO and NTNU co-organized a conference on Climate Change and Security, which gathered key contributors from around the world in Trondheim for four days (21–24 June). The event was a great success. It stirred major interest, including a full-page article in the Economist that was based on the conference. Later in the year, Halvard Buhaug’s article ‘Climate Not To Blame for African Civil Wars’ was published in the Proceedings of the National Academy of Sciences of the United States of America, one of the world’s most prestigious science journals (second only to Science and Nature). The article presents a comprehensive quantitative assessment of the relationship between climate variability and conflict, juxtaposing indicators of temperature and precipitation with a range of other explanatory factors. Buhaug’s findings became international news and were covered on a number of science websites, as well as by BBC News, Time, Le Monde and other media channels.

Gender, Peace and Security Two thousand and ten marked the 10th anniversary of UN Security Council Resolution 1325 on Women, Peace and Security. This event was also marked at PRIO, where the themes of gender, peace and security have been central for more than a decade. The major PRIO event held in this connection was a conference on Research Challenges on Women, Peace and Security 11–12 November. The conference staked out a future agenda for international research in this area. Bringing together participants from all over the world, with a range of disciplinary and methodological backgrounds, it promised to contribute to a renewal of studies of gender and conflict. This was then followed by a conference organized in cooperation with the World Bank, on Gender and Conflict Research, in early December. In addition, a set of innovative projects on sexual violence in armed conflict were initiated during 2010. These new projects aim to build datasets that lend themselves to modeling and statistical analysis, both in relation to gendered violence in war generally and in relation to rape and violence in the context of international peace operations more specifically. The projects meet a need for overview knowledge that has been lacking in the research and policy worlds engaged in issues of gender and conflict.

Migration and Transnationalism PRIO’s migration research has gained international stature, and 2010 became a year of expansion, with new funding, new people and new international partners. Migration researchers at PRIO play central roles in two new European projects: Imagining Europe from the Outside (EUMAGINE), funded by the European Commission, and Theorizing the Evolution of European Migration Systems (THEMIS), funded by NORFACE. It was also a major achievement when PRIO’s migration research team, in mid-2010, was awarded a major multiyear grant by the Research Council of Norway’s Welfare, Working Life and Migration (VAM) programme. The new PRIO project is titled Possibilities and Realities of Return Migration (PREMIG), stretches over four years, and will use a mixed-methods approach, including case studies of return to Afghanistan, Burundi, Iraq, Pakistan and Poland. While new projects are starting, PRIO’s longstanding research on migrant remittances is having an impact on policy, especially with respect to government efforts to ensure appropriate and adequate mechanisms for money transfer, also for migrants from conflict regions.

We do so many other things at PRIO that it is not clear whether the above should be described as highlights or merely as appetizers. Keep watching PRIO closely, and we will do what we can to inform, impress and surprise you. Enjoy!
Major Strategic Goals 2010–2013

1. Develop focused research efforts in three distinct areas: challenges to peace, the diversity of violence, and nonviolent intervention

2. Enable every researcher to publish the equivalent of one peer-reviewed journal article per year

3. Enhance PRIO’s visibility and impact within international public debate

4. Strengthen PRIO’s contribution to the development of policy

5. Initiate the establishment of a research school in peace and conflict studies in collaboration with one or more universities

6. Establish at least one long-term partnership with a research milieu in a conflict region

7. Strengthen the multicultural composition of PRIO’s staff

8. Attain a sustainable increase in the proportion of female staff at senior levels

9. Provide a structured system for internal professional skills training and career development

10. Take steps to ensure that at least one-third of PRIO’s funding is for long-term research

11. Increase international funding to at least one-quarter of annual turnover

12. Enhance PRIO’s financial robustness
The PRIO Annual Peace Address invites distinguished guests to reflect on how to contribute to the creation of a world in which violence is the exception and peace is the norm. The lecturers will include scholars, policy makers, writers, artists and others with a distinct voice on peace and war matters on the world scene.

PRIO is an international research institute whose overarching purpose is to conduct research on the conditions for peaceful relations between states, groups and people. The institute is independent, international and interdisciplinary and explores issues of peace and conflict. PRIO's research agenda reflects the institute's overarching purpose, yet PRIO is both proactively involved in identifying new trends in global conflict and oriented toward formulating and documenting new understandings and responses.

The PRIO Annual Peace Address is an import part of our efforts to create awareness, stir public debate and increase understanding about the conditions for peace in the world. We hope that the PRIO Annual Peace Address can challenge the peace research community by suggesting new measures and bringing new perspectives on peace and war. The questions asked and the answers sought can only be improved by critical challenges.

The 2010 PRIO Annual Peace Address is the first in what will be an annual event.

Communication and information is regarded as part of the basic activities at PRIO. We aim to disseminate expertise and findings from our research to a variety of different audiences. Through our website, seminar activities (see page 13) and visibility in various other public arenas, PRIO endeavours to function as a central meeting point and resource centre for peace research, both internationally and nationally.

Media and Debate PRIO researchers are encouraged to take part in public debate and to make their expertise available to the general public. In 2010, PRIO staff published a number of op-eds and commentaries in the national and international media.

PRIO staff members are very much in demand with the media. Throughout 2010, PRIO researchers enjoyed a level of visibility within the Norwegian media that was both steady and high, and the international media coverage kept increasing (see graph below).

PRIO Website The PRIO website is updated daily and covers all PRIO activities. In addition, we seek to provide information and useful links on topics of relevance both to researchers and to the general public. In 2010, the number of visitors to the PRIO website continued to increase.

The PRIO library has three main functions: an internal function as the supporting library for all projects and researchers at PRIO; a public function as a permanent collection and documentation centre for peace research and conflict resolution (as such, it is open to outside visitors); and a network function as a library cooperating and sharing resources with other libraries in Norway and abroad.

Interlibrary loans out from PRIO (i.e. documents lent plus article copies provided) saw a 32% decrease from 2009 to 2010, while interlibrary loans into PRIO increased by 32%. There was a 25% decrease in the number of loans within PRIO, and a 15% decrease in the number of loans to external visitors to the library. Requests and visits from externals decreased by 26%.

Books. A high priority for the library is the acquisition of books that are basic for work in peace and conflict research. A strong reference collection of the most relevant handbooks, encyclopaedias, dictionaries, yearbooks and statistical sources is essential. We have also accepted a special responsibility for the vast production of PRIO’s founding father, Johan Galtung.

At the end of the year, the library held approximately 375 current periodicals. Of these titles, 328 could be accessed online from computers within PRIO’s local network – an increase of 3% from 2009. In total, at the end of the year the library held approximately 720 periodical titles, both current and discontinued. Another 13 subscriptions have been ordered to start from 2011 while 10 will be discontinued.

The library subscribes to HeinOnline, an online collection of law journals. PRIO’s membership in the Nordic NIAS Council (NNC) further grants the library full access to a host of journals that mainly have an East Asian scope. PRIO is also connected to JSTOR, the electronic archive of back issues of periodicals.

The library’s IT system for periodical holdings can send an automatic e-mail notification about the arrival of a new issue of a particular periodical to any individual institute member. These e-mail alerts include links to tables of contents.

Databases. The library subscribes to the ISI Web of Science and ISI Journal Citation Reports, JSTOR, CIAO, HeinOnline, Lancaster Index to Defence and International Security Literature, Bibliography of Asian Studies, Encyclopaedia Britannica, Europa World Plus, Keesing’s Online, Transitions Online, World News Connection (WNC), Opoint, PressDisplay and Statskalenderen.

The NNC membership also implies access to a number of databases with an East Asian scope.

Journal of Peace Research

Journal of Peace Research (JPR) is an interdisciplinary and international bimonthly of scholarly work in peace research. The Journal encourages a wide conception of peace, but focuses on the causes of violence and conflict resolution.

JPR is fully peer-reviewed, and most articles are submitted unsolicited. JPR also regularly publish guest-edited special issues, in which articles are subject to the same strict review process as regular issues. Topics covered by special issues have most recently included Polarization and Conflict (guest-editors Gerald Schneider & Joan Esteban, 2008); Aftermath of Civil War (Ibrahim Elbadawi, Håvard Hegre & Gary Milante, 2008); Micro-Level Dynamics of Violent Conflict (Philip Verwimp, Patricia Justino & Tilman Brück, 2009), State Capacity and Civil War (David Sobek, ed, 2010), and New Frontiers of Terrorism Research (Todd Sandler, 2011).

Since 1998, authors with quantitative data have been obliged to post their data on our data replication page (http://www.prio.no/jpr/datasets). As of 31 December 2010, 341 datasets are listed there.

JPR is owned by and edited at PRIO, and published by Sage Publications in London. Since its establishment in 1964, JPR has published the work of authors from well over 50 countries. In 2010, JPR published, in 820 pages, a total of 280 articles and 106 Book Notes. The 2009 Journal Citation Reports, published in June 2010, ranked JPR as no. 3 out of 59 journals in international relations in terms of its impact factor, and no. 5 out of 128 in political science. JPR was also ranked high on the newer (and more stable) five-year impact factor.

Since 2006, JPR has appointed an external jury to select an article for its annual ‘Article of the Year Award’. For 2010, the award was given to Michael D. Ward, Brian D Greenhill & Kristin M Bakke for their article ‘The perils of policy by p-value: predicting civil conflict’. Journal of Peace Research 47(4): 363-375. Honorable mention went to David E Cunningham (‘Blocking resolution: How external states can prolong civil wars’, issue 2, 2010) and to Reed M Wood (‘Rebel capability and strategic violence against civilians’, issue 5, 2010). The full announcement of the award was published in issue number 48(2), 2011. The jury for the 2010 award consisted of Brett Ashley Leeds (Rice University), Ola Listhaug (Norwegian University of Science and Technology) and Ron P. Smith (Birkbeck College).

In early December 2009, JPR adopted the ScholarOne manuscript tracking system. Accordingly, all new submissions and referee reports are now to be submitted at http://mc.manuscriptcentral.com/jpres.

Security Dialogue is an international peer-reviewed journal that seeks to combine the development of new theoretical perspectives with innovative analysis of challenges to public policy across a wide-ranging field of security issues. The journal aims to revisit and recast the concept of security through new approaches and methodologies, and encourages ground-breaking reflection on new and traditional security issues, including globalization, nationalism, ethnic conflict and civil war, information technology, biological and chemical warfare, resource conflicts, pandemics, global terrorism and non-state actors, as well as environmental, energy, food and human security. The journal seeks to provide an outlet for analysis of the normative dimensions of security, theoretical and practical aspects of identity and identity-based conflict, gender aspects of security and critical security studies.

In 2010, Security Dialogue published 720 pages over 6 issues. In all, 35 full-length articles and 1 review essay were published, all peer-reviewed. Issue 41(1) was a special issue entitled ‘The Security-Development Nexus Revisited’ and issue 41(6) contained a special section on the evolution of International Security Studies.

Associate Editors in 2010 were Claudia Aradau (Open University), Pinar Bilgin (Bilkent University) and Mark B. Salter (University of Ottawa).

Security Dialogue is currently ranked as no. 10 in the ISI Journal Citation Reports’ rating for journals in international relations, with an impact factor of 1.479.

Strategic Analysis

PRIO is involved in two master’s degree programmes run in cooperation with Bjørknes College in Oslo, Stellenbosch University in South Africa and the Australian National University (ANU) in Australia.

The Oslo semester consists of three modules: ‘Conflict and Peace’, ‘Migration and Ethnicity’ and ‘Nations and Regions’. The courses are developed by PRIO staff and coordinated by Hege Barker.

In South Africa, the students are taught at the Department of Political Science of the University of Stellenbosch. The university, one of Africa’s best research universities, is located about an hour from Cape Town. Both of the above programmes are conducted entirely in English and place considerable emphasis on student participation in small seminar-style classes. For both programmes, lectures were given by PRIO staff and visiting speakers from other institutions, such as the Norwegian Institute of International Affairs (NUPI), the Institute for Labour and Social Research (Fafo), the Nordic Africa Institute, the Nansen Institute, the Norwegian Defence Research Establishment (FFI) and the United Nations.

In 2010, the course curriculum was divided into three conceptual realms:

- the causes of conflict,
- the dynamics of conflict, and
- resolving conflict and building peace.

Themes explored during the course included the ethics of war, historical perspectives on war and peace, horizontal inequalities and conflict, election-related violence, the relationship between climate change and conflict, conflict and peacebuilding in Afghanistan, the challenges of peacebuilding operations, the relationship between poverty and civil war, and the roles of civil society and women in peacebuilding processes. As part of the course, students also visited the Nobel Institute and participated in a one-day conflict-mediation simulation exercise.

The 2010 course was attended by 23 students from 22 countries around the world. Students are selected each year through a highly competitive process, and all successful applicants demonstrate a particular interest in, and in some cases experience with, peace and conflict issues. Students hold the minimum equivalent of a bachelor’s degree, but many are in the process of completing master’s and doctoral degrees. The summer school 2010 was coordinated by Kendra Dupuy and Stephan Hamberg.

The purpose of the Peace Research Institute Oslo (PRIO) is to engage in research concerning the conditions for peaceful relations between nations, groups and individuals. Since its foundation in 1959, PRIO has played a central international role in developing peace research as an important academic discipline.

Following his appointment in 2009, Kristian Berg Harpviken is currently serving as PRIO’s Director for the period 2009–13, with the possibility of an extension of his term of office for up to another four years. Inger Skjelsbæk currently serves as the institute’s Deputy Director.

In 2010, research at PRIO was organized in terms of one ‘Centre of Excellence’ and three programmes:
- Centre for the Study of Civil War (CSCW) (Director: Scott Gates)
- Security (Leader: J. Peter Burgess)
- Ethics, Norms and Identities (Leader: Jørgen Carling)
- Conflict Resolution and Peacebuilding (Leader: Pinar Tank)

In 2010, the English name of the institute was changed to ‘Peace Research Institute Oslo’. No changes were made to the Norwegian name or to the abbreviation ‘PRIO’. A new logo for the institute was launched in association with the name change.

We consider 2010 to have been another good year for PRIO, with a high level of activity. Much effort from both researchers and support staff has been directed towards the realization of the institute’s strategic goals for the 2010–13 strategy period.

The following research output is emphasized:
- 7 scientific monographs (the corresponding figure for 2009 was 7)
- 66 peer-reviewed journal articles (the figure for 2009 was 66)
- 49 book chapters (the figure for 2009 was 31)
- 3 completed doctoral dissertations (the figure for 2009 was 2)

In 2010, the institute’s total operating income amounted to NOK 81.9 million, an increase of 12% on the corresponding figure for 2009. The 2010 accounts show a surplus of NOK 4.4 million, against a deficit of 1.6 million in 2009. PRIO has a long-term strategic aim of building up its net assets, and the 2010 result represents a positive contribution towards this goal. The 2010 surplus will be added to net assets, which will then amount to NOK 36.6 million equivalent to 43% of net assets and liabilities. The cash-flow analysis for 2010 shows a net increase of NOK 17 million in the institute’s cash equivalents from 31 December 2009 to 31 December 2010. PRIO’s liquidity situation is considered good: current assets are equivalent to 1.8 times current liabilities at 31 December 2010.

The Board is of the opinion that the annual accounts give a true and fair picture of PRIO’s financial situation as of 31 December 2010.

The institute receives a core grant from the Research Council of Norway. According to current guidelines for governmental funding of research institutes, these core funds should be used to ensure the quality of research carried out at the institute through long-term competence-building within key research areas. A new model for allocation of core grants to research institutes was launched in 2009. The new model consists of two components: one based on outputs, the second consisting of strategic institute programmes. The output-based component is allocated on the basis of achievements relative to a set of specified indicators. PRIO’s solid research outputs have ensured that the institute so far has performed well in terms of these indicators, but the portion of applied research, as defined in the model, has a potentially negative turn-out for PRIO in the future.

In 2010, the core grant represented 15.4% of the institute’s total income. In addition, the Research Council of Norway’s contribution to the Centre of Excellence represented 12.2% of the institute’s total turnover. A further 23.2% of the institute’s income came from the Research Council through ordinary project grants. Next to the Research Council of Norway, the Norwegian Ministry of Foreign Affairs has been PRIO’s most important funder in 2010, providing 24.8% of the institute’s total operating income. Additional income was generated through research projects for a number of other funders, including the European Commission, the Norwegian Ministry of Defence and the World Bank.

For 2011, the Research Council of Norway has approved a core grant of NOK 13,302,000. PRIO has budgeted for a small increase in the turnover and a modest operating surplus for 2011. At the start of the year, 73% of the budgeted income was considered certain. The Board is of the opinion that the conditions for continued operation are present.

PRIO enjoys a good internal working environment. Routines for health, environmental awareness and security have been established, and a work environment committee has been set up. PRIO is also committed to the agreement on fostering a more inclusive workplace. PRIO employees participate in decisionmaking at the institute through membership of or representation on the Institute Council and the PRIO Board. Reported sick leave in 2010 was 2.2% (2.1% in 2009). The institute does not pollute the external environment.

On average, 96 people were employed at PRIO during 2010, working an equivalent of 66.8 person-years. The average number of people employed at PRIO during the year increased by 2 from 2009 to 2010, and the number of person-years increased by 1.6. A total of 118 persons were engaged by PRIO during 2010, many of those by CSCW on a part-time basis. During 2010, 14 doctoral candidates and 8 master’s degree students benefited from scholarships and/or workspace at PRIO.

PRIO promotes gender equality for its employees. In 2010, work carried out by research staff at the institute amounted to 50.2 person-years. Among junior researchers and doctoral candidates, women were responsible for 56% of the person-years worked. For senior researchers holding doctoral degrees, the corresponding figure was 47%, while it was only 7% for those with professorial competence. In addition, 16.6 person-years were performed by administrative and support staff at PRIO, and women were responsible for 57% of these.

PRIO makes active efforts to prevent discrimination on the basis of functional ability, ethnicity, national origin, skin colour, or religious or philosophical orientation. Activities performed in this regard include recruitment, remuneration and working conditions, promotional schemes, staff development programmes and protection against harassment.

PRIO is engaged in the project ‘Peace and Reconciliation in the Eastern Mediterranean’. In relation to this project, a branch office has been established in Nicosia, Cyprus. Apart from the work of the PRIO Cyprus Centre, all of the institute’s activities are carried out at PRIO’s offices in Oslo.

Note 1: Accounting Principles
The annual accounts are produced in accordance with the Accounting Act of 1998 and sound accounting practice.

Valuation and Classification of Assets and Liabilities
Long-lived assets aimed at permanent utilization or ownership are classified as fixed assets. Other assets are classified as current assets. Items falling due within one year are classified as current assets and liabilities.

Fixed assets are stated at historical cost net of accumulated depreciation or at estimated fair value if less than book value and the decline in book value is not perceived as temporary. Depreciation is provided on a straight-line basis at rates calculated to amortize each asset over its expected economic lifetime. Current assets are valued at the lower of cost or net realizable value. Assets and liabilities in foreign currency are valued at year-end exchange rates.

Principles for the Entering of Royalty Income
Revenue on royalty is recognized in the year the money is received.

Pensions
The basis for recording pension liabilities is estimated salary level upon retirement and years of service. Deviations from estimates and effects of changes in assumptions are amortized over expected remaining years of service if exceeding 10% of the greater of pension liabilities and pension funds. Changes in the pension plan are dispersed over the remaining years of service. The figures include payroll tax. The pension means are assessed at real value.

Note 2: Separate Bank Account for Withholding Taxes
The balance in the separate bank account for withholding taxes at 31 December 2010 was NOK 2,630,207. The corresponding figure at 31 December 2009 was NOK 2,479,098.

Note 3: Project Accounts
The method of accounting used for projects is the percentage-of-completion method (Norwegian Accounting Standard 2, Construction Contracts). Project revenues are accounted for according to progress and reflect earned income. Project expenses are accounted for according to the accrual principle of accounting. The project balance and any outstanding income are regarded as sufficient to cover future expenses needed for the completion of the project. Earned non-invoiced revenues are included in the sum for debtors in the balance. Account payments and project advances from funders are presented as current liabilities on the balance sheet.

Note 4: Machines and Furniture
Depreciation of machines and furniture is calculated using the linear method over five years or three years, depending on the estimated lifetime of the assets.

Note 5: Leasing
On 1 August 2005, PRIO entered into an agreement with the Norwegian Red Cross for rent of office space in Hausmannsgate 7. The agreement was extended until 31 July 2013 and the annual rent, with addenda for the 3rd floor, is NOK 2.7 million. After expiry, PRIO has the right to extend the agreement for another five years, at market-regulated rent. Each of the parties can claim an annual regulation of the rent equal to 100% of the change in Statistics Norway’s consumer price indices.

Note 6: Pension Expenses, Pension Assets and Pension Liabilities
PRIO’s employees are members of the Norwegian Public Service Pension Fund. The pension plan comprises retirement pensions, disability pensions and contingent life pensions (contingent life pensions include joint life pensions and children’s pensions). The pension plan is regulated by the Norwegian Public Service Pension Fund Act. The plan also comprises contractual pensions from 62 years. The pension plan is coordinated with pensions from the National Insurance Scheme. Membership is mandatory for all employees who qualify according to current regulations. At 1 January 2011, 68 employees were included in the fund, and the number of pensioners was 2. Calculation of pension contributions and pension liabilities are based on actuarial principles. The pension scheme is not based on funds; payment of pensions is guaranteed by the Norwegian state (Retirement Pension Act §1). The Norwegian Public Service Pension Fund simulates placing the pension assets in government bonds (fictitious funds).

Note 8: Number of Employees During the Financial Year

The average number of employees at PRIO during 2010 was 96, performing a total of 66.8 person-years (the corresponding figures for 2009 were 94 and 65.2). Additionally, the institute had 8 graduate students with scholarships and/or office space at PRIO during the year (the corresponding figure for 2009 was 11). The average number of conscientious objectors was 1 (the corresponding figure for 2009 was 1).

Note 9: Auditors’ Fee

In 2010, PRIO paid a fee of NOK 237,500 to Deloitte State Authorized Public Accountants Ltd for their audit of the accounts. Special attestations on projects amounted to NOK 103,357. Payments for advice on tax and other matters amounted to NOK 15,644. These figures include VAT.

Note 10: Remuneration of the Leadership

In 2010, PRIO’s costs for remuneration of the Institute Director and members of the PRIO Board were NOK 986,732 and NOK 200,250, respectively. These figures do not include payroll tax. The Institute Director is a member of PRIO’s collective pension scheme at the Norwegian Public Service Pension Fund. For each year employed in the Institute Director position, the Institute Director accrues 1.5 months of salary, payable upon completion of the Institute Director term.
Note 11: Tax

In 2009, the Norwegian tax authorities decided that PRIO is liable for corporate taxation, effective as of the 2008 income year. PRIO disagrees and has appealed the decision, pursuant to article 2.32 in the Taxation Act, providing tax exemption for non-profit foundations. It is difficult to predict the outcome of the appeal. Income tax paid for 2008, amounting to NOK 1,266,187, was not considered a cost in the 2008 accounts, but was included in the ‘Other receivables’ item in the balance sheet. Deferred tax receivable for 2009, estimated at NOK 438,162, was similarly not included in the accounts for 2009. For 2010, however, PRIO has accounted for tax as if the institute were liable for corporate taxation, including an estimated income tax of NOK 2,087,352 for the 2010 income year.

These two members shall be chosen from among the PRIO staff. The Institute Director, the Deputy Director and the Administrative Director are not eligible.

The Institute Director, Deputy Director and the Administrative Director take part in the meetings of the Board, without voting rights.

Consideration shall be given to achieving reasonable representation of both sexes.

The Board elects its own Chairperson and Deputy Chairperson.

If any Board member finds it necessary to leave the Board during his/her period of appointment, a new appointment should be made for the duration of the period.

A quorum of the Board shall be constituted by the presence of at least five members; or by the presence of four, including the Chairperson. The Chair has a double vote in the case of a tie.

Unless special circumstances are an impediment, the Institute Director and the staff representatives to the Board shall also present to the IC all other matters which they intend to put before the Board.

Personnel matters are not to be dealt with by the Institute Council. The Institute Council itself determines whether a matter falls within its mandate.

‘The [Centre for the Study of Civil War] has become the leading international research environment in research on civil war... [the] level of quality of the research is exceptionally good’
‘Over the past 50 years PRIO has established itself as the pre-eminent peace and conflict research institute in Europe – many would say the world. Its major, but by no means only, contribution has been to drive forward the frontiers of knowledge in quantitative conflict. Its research and publication record in this area has been extraordinarily impressive, its flagship journal is world class and its impact on the field huge.’
